

Died at the Nye General Hospital on his 77th birthday. He came to Tonopah in 1902 and had resided there until his death. He was a blacksmith by trade, working in many of the local mines in the early days and later operating a blacksmith shop in Tonopah.